Island in the Sky Island in the Sky is a national park in the Central Highlands of Tasmania, Australia. Situated along the Imbil River, the park is formed by the remnants of an uplifted basalt slab which is believed to have been formed approximately 35 million years ago. The area has many hot springs, and the Imbil River is thought to have been responsible for the formation of the park. The park is named after the natural features of Castle Hill, Sugarloaf Mountain and the Imbil River, and includes a large, partly accessible
