Q: PlayOnLinux installed but Firefox says "Firefox is not compatible with your product" I installed PlayOnLinux (4.0.4) on Ubuntu 15.10 using the PlayOnLinux install instructions. Firefox is a known issue according to the official blog. Yet, whenever I open Firefox, it says "Firefox is not compatible with your product". Furthermore, whenever I restart Firefox, it says "Restarting Firefox" and then hangs. How can I get around this and use PlayOnLinux, as well as other software, with Firefox? A: This bug has been resolved in the latest version of PlayOnLinux (4.2.3) You can download it for Ubuntu here. How do you profile your startup idea? - skunkwaffle I've been thinking about writing a startup. Essentially it would be a web service that allows one to create URL shortcuts to certain types of files. So instead of having to use a browser, search Google or other search engines, etc... these URLs would be entered and you would get a list of results. The URL would then be a direct link to that file. This would also be a good way to get past a web filter if that were to happen. Essentially it would be my first step to get around current internet censorship. It should be pretty easy to program. Thoughts? ===== kwamenum86 Twitter does something like this in a limited capacity. However, I think you would really need to be solving a big problem to make a business out of it because it is very hard to monetize something like that. If you search for tech startup, what comes up is that people want to sell a service or software in some way. ----- DanHulton I don't mean to poke holes in your idea, but... I can't imagine anything that would be easier to monetize than the free internet. Everyone's trying to monetize it - I know I am! So I imagine you're going to have a hard time making it work, on the other hand, I imagine you're going to have a hard time making it work. Yours is an (admittedly very) short-sighted, grand-i-solution to a problem that is fundamentally broken and can't be fixed. ----- antonovka You
