Efficacy and Safety of Ruxolitinib on Moderate to Severe Juvenile Idiopathic Arthritis: An Observational Cohort Study. The objective of this study was to determine the efficacy and safety of ruxolitinib for moderate to severe juvenile idiopathic arthritis (JIA) in a real-world setting. Patients with moderate to severe JIA, who met the Australian Juvenile Rheumatology Association (AJRA) criteria for rheumatoid factor (RF)-positive or RF-negative polyarticular course, who had biologic-naïve, or failed to respond to previous conventional therapy, were administered ruxolitinib in this observational cohort study. Outcomes included the American College of Rheumatology (ACR) pediatric response criteria for JIA, Pediatric Acute-Rheumatic Fever Incidence, Patient Outcomes, and Monitoring (PRINTO) index, and erythrocyte sedimentation rate (ESR). The primary outcome was the proportion of patients achieving ACR Pediatric 30, ACR Pediatric 70, ACR Pediatric 90, and ACR Pediatric 100 responses by week 24. The secondary outcome was safety. Among the 69 patients included, the median duration of ruxolitinib use was 17 weeks (range, 4 to 24 weeks). At week 24, 28 (40%) of 69 patients achieved ACR Pediatric 30, 34 (49%) achieved ACR Pediatric 70, 35 (51%) achieved ACR Pediatric 90, and 38 (55%) achieved ACR Pediatric 100 responses. Ruxolitinib was well tolerated; however, the patient population appeared to have a higher risk of infections than previous reports of ruxolitinib in adult inflammatory arthritis. This observational study of real-world patients with moderate to severe JIA provided preliminary information on the efficacy and safety of ruxolitinib in patients with poor disease control on other therapies. Ruxolitinib appeared to be well tolerated, although infection is a concern, and it was associated with improvement in many features of JIA disease activity.Q: Ruby: How do I take repeated results from an iterator and automatically join them into a single line? Double stick tape is used in many industries to secure various items to, or to secure a part to, a second part. Double stick tape can be used for temporary purposes such as a temporary hold or securing an item to a second item or to a surface. In many instances, double stick tape can also be used for a permanent installation or as a permanent fastener. Many double stick tape manufacturing facilities are located in Asia and produce tape having a first adhesive or layer and a second adhesive or layer. The manufacturing facility would often sell the tape to consumers for use in the consumer's home. The consumer would apply the double stick tape to the surface and attempt to apply a quantity of the tape to the surface. Unfortunately, the tape would usually be difficult to apply due to the shape of the tape or to the irregular surface of the surface to which the tape is applied. Generally, the manufacturing facility would not receive returns of the consumer's installed tape. In most circumstances, the consumer would be unable to install the tape in a satisfactory manner. Therefore, consumers would often return the tape to the manufacturing facility to receive a refund. Based on the foregoing, there is a need for an improved applicator for use in installing double stick tape to a surface. The improved tape applicator should allow consumers to install double stick tape in a reasonably uniform manner. The improved tape applicator should allow consumers to open and close a tape roll to apply tape to a surface. The improved tape applicator should allow for the easy repositioning of the tape roll.Q: How to get json return with nothing sent when it's ajax jquery Below is my code : For the second time $('#myInput').val(''); var ajax = $.ajax({ url : "abc.php", type: "post", data : "username="+$('#myInput').val(), dataType : "json", cache : false }); ajax.done(function(data, textStatus, jqXHR){ console.log(data); }); If abc.php return something if abc.php return nothing, I want to get nothing.
